Eva Longoria Auctions Herself Off to Millionaire Entrepreneur to Benefit Hurricane Relief

September 28: Eva Longoria of “Desperate Housewives,” in coordination with K Earth 101 (<http://relief.krth101.com>), auctioned off a date to entrepreneur Frank Moran, president and CEO of Team One Employment Specialists, LLC and the Home Design Center, for $10,005 to benefit the survivors of hurricane Katrina. All of the proceeds from the auction are going to the Red Cross.

Eva Longoria’s date with native Los Angelino Frank Moran will be covered exclusively by Access Hollywood. This date is uncharacteristically more public than Mr. Moran’s usually quieter charitable contributions, but Frank explains, “I can not overstate the impact of Katrina on the victims, especially those of lower income. Getting involved in the relief effort is my civil and community duty as a corporate citizen, and this auction was a fun way to contribute to a good cause.”

As an award for his generosity, Eva Longoria will accompany Mr. Moran on a date that includes a private limo, private dinner, and the “Hot Tamales Live” show at the legendary Comedy Store on September 29th.
